CARIBEAN SEA, 1842

The British are having a difficult time in the Caribbean. Some of the islands are in open revolt and the Governor has been killed by his own brother. Anarchy rules and a cruel and bloodthirsty gang of pirates and gaolbirds are free to do as they want, burning and looting the houses of the wealthy merchants and raping and plundering at will.

Susan Nelson, the murdered Governor's daughter, is caught up in the growing lawlessness whilst visiting one of the outlying islands. Unaware of her father's death, she conceals her identity and sets out to return to the capital, Port Kingston.
